"INCURABLES"

TO descend from comfort and independence to penury and helplessness, to sink from happy usefulness to sorrowful, compulsory inactivity, to be burdened for all the remainder of life by disease which cannot be cured, to sorely need immediate help and to shrink from the idea of soliciting assistance—such is the lot of those for whom we work and for whom we plead.

And that plea must be made now with even more than wonted urgency. The times in which we live are full of countless distractions and there is a very real danger that the sad plight of

CHARITIES approved by DEBRETTS

A Great Hospital's Urgent Appeal.

Few of those who gaze from Westminster Bridge on the handsome blocks of St Thomas's Hospital realise that this is one of the most ancient Charities of London

First founded at Southwark in the days of King John and endowed to the memory of Thomas à Becket, the Martyr of Canterbury, in 1553, this religious foundation was re-endowed by Edward VI.

From those days it has ever been in the forefront in the art of healing

In 1860 in the old buildings at Southwark at the Surrey end of London Bridge, Florence Nightingale established the first great training school for nurses in England. Her Majesty Queen Victoria opened the present buildings for the reception of patients on June 21st, 1871

St. Thomas's Hospital.

Pathological laboratories, operating theatres offering every facility for the practice of perfect aseptic surgery, well equipped special departments have been provided until we have a hospital fully typical of the voluntary hospitals of England, which are the admiration of visitors from all parts of the world

During the war 11,376 officers and other ranks were received from various seats of war and treated in the hospital

The cost of carrying on the work has increased enormously, and the Governors find themselves faced with a crippling debt of £100,000

- St. Thomas's has done great work in the past and can do even more in the future, but it must be cleared of this debt

Lambeth knows what the Hospital does for it, and Lambeth pays. Does Park Lane recognise the claims of the Hospital where its doctors study and its nurses are trained?

Will you, who read this, kindly help by sending a donation to the treasurer the Hon Sir Arthur Stanley, and become an annual subscriber to meet the needs of the Hospital

HOMELESS CHILDREN'S AID AND ADOPTION SOCIETY

CHAIRMAN OF COMMITTEE: REV. F. H. MEYER, B.A., D.D.

The aim of this Society is to befriended the children of unmarried mothers, and give them a fair chance in life. It receives little children under five years of age into its Home, and, if desired, arranges for the adoption of such children as are considered suitable, after careful investigation, as to the fitness of the adopting parents.

Over 40,000 of these children are born in the United Kingdom every year—the serious wastage in child life consequent on illegitimacy demands the grave attention of all who are concerned in our National well being.

'MAGICOAL' ELECTRIC FIRE

This is the most wonderful domestic invention of the age. It represents a living coal fire at its very best, even to the flame effect, and can be fitted into an ordinary grate. Just the touch of a button and instantly the substance—which is indestructible—becomes the facsimile of a blazing fire such as you see on a frosty night, and at a cost of less than burning a wax candle. The heat can be graduated at proportionate cost. There is no combustion—no fumes. Write for particulars of the

Pears

No name in the world is better known than Pears. Just as the word bread stands for food, so 'Pears' has come to symbolise soap in its purest and most essential form. The credit for this cannot be given to advertisement; nor has competition of every kind, from soaps whose name is legion, succeeded in dispossessing Pears of its fame. The absolute perfection of Pears' Transparent Soap—and nothing else — has made the name the most famous in the world.

New Discoveries in Permanent Waving

Amazing new discoveries have been made by Eugène, of Grafton Street, the well known specialist in Permanent Waving. Advanced as the Eugène Method already was compared with other systems, M Eugène knew there was scope for further improvements. The result is a new method so perfected that Permanently Curled or naturally curly hair are one and the same thing in all but name—every previous drawback in Permanent Waving has been removed. Hair as soft, silky and gracefully wavy as any gift of nature is the happy outcome of Eugène's latest scientific triumph. Full particulars and photos sent post free on mentioning 'Debrett'.

impose a very serious burden upon all large estates

Life assurance affords a ready and convenient means of providing for this capital charge at death out of income during lifetime, and in such a way that the necessary sum is available even if only one premium has been paid.

Valuable concessions as to rebate of income tax are made by the Inland Revenue authorities in respect of the premiums paid on Death Duty policies.

1923

BY W. H. BERRY.

Managing Editor of "Car and Golf"

THE outstanding feature of the motoring year was undoubtedly the remarkable interest displayed in the light car. For years it seemed impossible to build a satisfactory motor vehicle of the lighter type, the simple reason being that the makers tackled the work from the wrong end. They tried to build satisfactory light cars by a simple reduction of weight on the bigger machines—and failed dismally.

ALL-WEATHER CARS.

IN the medium-weight car the most remarkable development has been in the construction of all-weather bodies, which give either an open or closed car at the option of the owner. Considerable price reductions have also been made with these motors, and although there is a tendency towards radical changes in engine design, the older side by-side valved engine is still the usual practice. Electrical systems have been very greatly improved in detail and are far more reliable.

CARS DE LUXE.

SO far as the bigger and costly machines are concerned, improvements are confined to constructional detail and coachwork. The coachwork and fittings on the best known cars, those having a chassis cost of between £1,000 and £2,000, mark the very last word in beautiful design and luxury. It is no exaggeration to say that in both chassis construction and body finish the more expensive English cars set a standard that other countries find a difficulty in equalling.

The existing system of taxation is something of a handicap to designers, who must produce engines capable of equalling the performance of the finest Overseas productions with their eye at the same time on the Treasury Rating of the engine for taxation purposes. Despite this handicap, however, the big British cars, wherein six-cylindered engines are almost universally employed, develop high power very smoothly and sweetly over the full revolution range. Withal they are exceedingly economical in petrol consumption. These observations apply to cars such as the Rolls Royce, Lanchester, Napier and Vauxhall, which are admittedly, in their respective classes, leaders in automobilism.

ACCESSORIES.

ONE very satisfactory feature is that British manufacturers are now rapidly making up the lee way brought about by the war, and are producing the new form of cord tyres, which are at least fifty per cent better than any of the pre-war tyres. For reasons best known to itself, the Government has not seen fit to impose a tax on imported tyres. The result is that British tyre manufacturers are faced with very unfair competition. Firms such as Dunlop and Avon are now building covers that cannot be excelled, so far as road performance goes, by either Continental or American manufacturers. Considerable forward strides have been made in regard to electric equipment, which is now, generally speaking, quite trustworthy, whatever type be used. Electric lighting and engine starting is now standard on practically every car. This as much as anything else has helped to reduce running costs in that it has brought within reach the almost perfect owner-driver car.

HAS attained an unrivalled position in the affections of the British upper classes. It may indeed be said to form a weekly pictorial diary for the world that hunts, shoots, races and has a zest for the sporting or social life. It is the most beautifully produced paper in this country.

For those, alas, large numbers of the new poor who have been driven abroad to the Colonies and elsewhere it forms a delightful link with the old life and their old friends in the Old Country, and therefore “The Tatler” particularly requests its readers after they have enjoyed the paper to send it to one of the “exiles.”

To-day Macdougalls are the accepted authorities for Sporting Attire and Correct Highland Dress. As the recognised House for Scottish Homespuns they possess the finest collection in the country of hand-made woollens and other Highland products.

Extract from

THE INVERNESS "COURIER," of July 8th, 1835

"A new taste seems to have sprung up for the more valuable and curiously fine patterns of clan tartan for ladies' dresses Mr Macdougall, draper here, has a mixed variety of the different patterns, some of them exceedingly rich and beautiful Lord Brougham and others have rendered them fashionable in London, and orders for them to a great amount have been executed in Inverness"

Extract from

"THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS," September, 1851

"When Lord Brougham, then holder of the Great Seal, was in Inverness, when, indeed, he made the celebrated declaration at a Public Meeting that he would write to the King by that night's post, he purchased from Mr Macdougall cloth for no less than forty pairs of shepherd tartan trousers, and in this ample supply he has been going on ever since"

Macdougalls' clientèle embraces most of the nobility of the land, and they have had the honour of supplying the late Queen Victoria and King Edward in addition to holding a warrant of appointment to H M Queen Alexandra and all the Courts of Europe

BY E. BERESFORD CHANCELLOR, M.A.

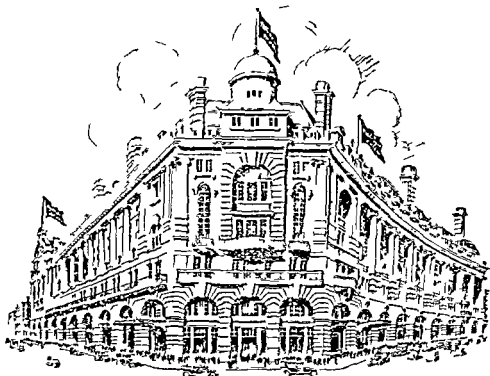

THE West End is to-day the hub of the shopping world, and has an irresistible attraction, not only for those resident in London itself, but also for all visitors to the Metropolis from the country and from overseas.

THE SHOPPING CENTRE.

YET no little of its former exclusiveness has departed, so that if St. James's Street is still the street of Fashion, and Bond Street still the Mecca of those who shop, it is "with a difference." Indeed, the more bourgeois character of Oxford Street, and the cosmopolitanism of Regent Street, are now far more representative of the new London than is the thoroughfare in which the Clubs still hold out against innovation, or the long and narrow street which the ghosts of Sterne and Nelson and Scott still haunt, or that Savile Row whose actual sartorial fame has eclipsed the fame of Sheridan whose bright eyes once looked out on it. The peculiarity of all the chief streets in this region is that they link up Commerce and Fashion in a curiously intimate way. Oxford Street, for instance, begins among a collection of fashionable houses, with many noble Lords living just off its main stream, and ends in the frankly commercial turmoil of Holborn. Regent Street rises, so to phrase it, from the spot where Carlton House is represented by Nash's great terrace of private palaces, and debouches into London's widest residential thoroughfare, with nothing between but shops of every conceivable kind and every conceivable size. From Bond Street every by-way is full of fashionable houses, "well inhabited," as the old topographers used to term it, and nearly every house has a history and can boast of a past when hoops and patches and amber-headed canes were the vogue, and when the sedate sedan chair represented the headlong motor or taxi-cab of to-day.

LONDON IN MINIATURE.

ALL the more decorative portion of London's past is to be read in the stones of these thoroughfares. All the great figures which live for us still in the canvases of Gainsborough and Romney and Sir Joshua have trodden them; have lived in these red bricked or stuccoed residences, have passed along to take the air in St James's Park, or to wander further to eat syllabubs in the Five Fields. The Thames has been described as "liquid history." The West End may well be designated the microcosm of London, for here the commerce which has made the country what it is joins hands with those without whom the country might well have become, as Russia has to-day, the prey of tyrants and adventurers.

"EMBASSY COURT" SERVICE SUITES DE LUXE,

91-92, JERMYN STREET, LONDON, S.W.1.

AMONGST all the difficulties as to accommodation which are common to all big cities, especially London, the things that matter to visitors are — "Adaptability, "Position, and "Service"

ADAPTABILITY is the natural adjunct of comfort, but the hotels with their varied clientèle do not always lend themselves to the many and varied requirements of their guests. Everything is done on a big scale for a large number, and individual requirements cannot be studied.

POSITION — London offers so many and varied attractions, that to be in the heart of Theatreland, Clubland, Shopland and withal to take your walks abroad amongst Royal Palaces and Parks, etc., without the trouble of travelling by rail, bus or car, is surely the beau idéal of a residential position.

SERVICE has been rightly called the power of attraction, and therefore the Service Suites de Luxe at "Embassy Court," which offer Turkish and Russian Baths Hairdressing Salons Safe Deposit, Private Cars, Theatre and Travel Tickets, Garage, Stenographers, Office Accommodation, Secretarial Facilities, etc., is surely giving unlimited service.

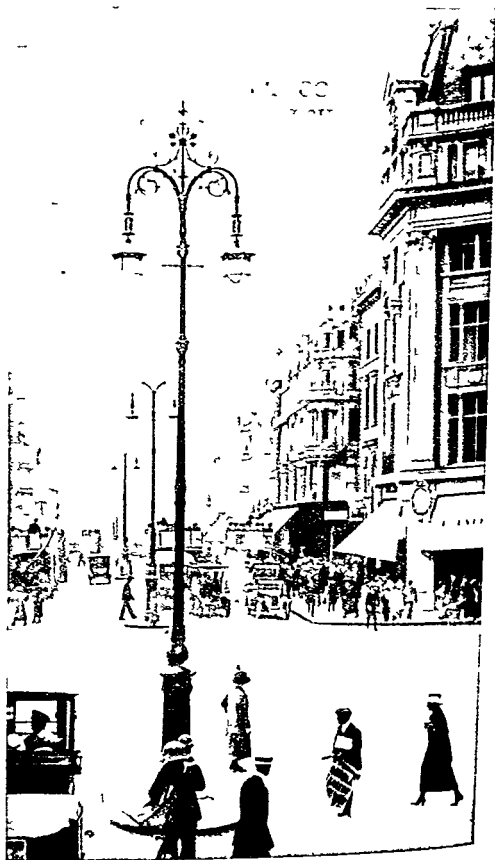

"EMBASSY COURT" — Each Suite has every convenience, including large Dining Room, Bedroom and private Bath Room Telephone, Central Heating etc., and is luxuriously furnished and decorated with exquisite taste. It has all the individual attention and comfort of your own home without the expense of a first class hotel. Meals are served in your own Dining Room, the Cuisine is of the best and refreshments are served at any hour.

THE INAUGURATION of the "Embassy Court" Service Suites de Luxe marks a new era in luxurious accommodation for visitors from the Home counties and Overseas, who appreciate privacy, comfort, individual attention and personal care from the management.

Mr H Lockett, who directs all the arrangements, is well known to the Nobility in this country and abroad.

Cables and Telegrams, "Nullsecum Stock, London," and Telephones, Gerrard 1036 7, will enable intending visitors to arrange accommodation, when their individual requirements will be fully catered for.

A Booklet, giving full details of the service offered, together with terms, will be sent post free on request.

HARROGATE

With its wonderful reputation as a health giving town, its mineral waters unique and wonderful in their efficacy Harrogate has an environment scarcely surpassed for beauty of scenery and landscape for within easy distance lies on the very edge of a wild moorland country with the beauty spots of Yorkshire within a few miles of its borders.

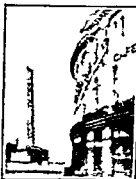

PARLIAMENT ST.

As a residential resort, the town possesses many fine stone-built residences, which range in size from the modest villa to houses almost palatial. The shopping facilities leave nothing to be desired, and add greatly to the attractiveness of the town, being greatly appreciated both by residents and visitors. The business premises are imposing, and in every way excellent, and it is universally acknowledged that the shops are of a high order. It will also be found that prices are moderate and in some cases even lower than elsewhere.

As a holiday resort for wanderers amongst moor and fen and craag, and torrent which pass through rocky verge and park-like meadows, the vista of nature of unsurpassed beauty is a delight to visitors and a veritable paradise to artistic temperaments. Then add to these charms a visit to the Cathedral of Ripon, the Abbeys of Fountains, Bolton, and Stanbury, out as things of beauty and footprints in the sands of time. Intending visitors to Harrogate have a splendid series of trains at their disposal those from London, Hull, & Cross, can travel in through carriages in rapidity and luxury.

The DEAF AID SOCIETY USES

The DEAF CAN HEAR—In these four words lies the plain, authenticated story of Mr. R. H. Dent's 'Acoustique' aid to hearing.

Ten years—five years ago it would have been incredible that a maimed man could acquire an artificial hand of such sensitive mechanism that the very finger tips are perfectly controlled.

So with Hearing—the "Acoustique" is not just a rough and ready Aid to Ealing Nature—the old trumpet or large magnifying instrument to wit—but a Means of Hearing so akin to Nature that any consciousness of mechanical aid is non-existent. Lament Aural Surgeons endorse the "Acoustique" (many Doctors are users), and constantly send or accompany their patients to 95, Wigmore Street, to be fitted with the type of Aid best suited to the individual case.

For DEAF DOCTORS there is a special 'ACOUSTIQUE' Stethoscope enabling them to carry on their good work.

For DEAF CHURCH FOLK there is a special "ACOUSTIQUE" Church Set enabling them once again to attend and enjoy the services.

For the general DEAF PUBLIC there are 24 distinct types of "ACOUSTIQUE," one for every case, no matter cause, extent, or duration. Nerve and Middle Ear (Catarth) cases specially fitted. The exclusive NON BLAD ATTACHMENT renders the "ACOUSTIQUE" as inconspicuous for men as for women, whilst speech and music are audible in their natural tones to the deafest person.

Individual Demonstrations and Tests personally or fittings by post from particulars or prescription. NO CONSULTATIVE FEE

GUY'S HOSPITAL GAZETTE says:—

"The merits of the 'Acoustique' have already been widely recognised by Medical Men of the highest standing in the Profession, which is sufficient testimony to its value."

effort!*

A gentle pressure on a lever here—
a guiding hand
on the fabric...

—that is all that is needed with a Singer Electric Machine to produce beautiful, exquisitely finished needlework which you will be proud to show as your own work.

THE most careful hand sewing could not be daintier—yet you can sew at the rate of 1,000 stitches per minute on a Singer 101 if you choose. It is equally speedy and efficient on heavier domestic sewing, for, despite its artistic cabinet—just like a small table when the machine is closed down—it is built to "last a lifetime."

SINGER No 101 'ELECTRIC' SEWING MACHINE

—for the well-appointed home.

It connects up to any lamp-socket—it is automatically lubricated—and the motor being built into the machine and sewing mechanism totally enclosed, it needs no attention.

Call in and see the Singer 101—or write for full particulars—
